

Erica & Trevor Hatchell

723 14th Street NW

The Hatchell family on the front porch: Tess, Trevor, Sutton and Erica. Trevor Hatchell is First Vice President, Land Services Group, Brokerage Services, CBRE Inc. Erica Hatchell is the owner and Chief Operating Officer of Gertrude Zackery Jewelry. Erica inherited the house and the jewelry company from her mother, Gertrude Zackery who died in January 2013. Zackery had completed extensive changes to the interior of the house, making it into a very personal and facinating space.

The Henry Mann house:

From the Historic Landmarks Survey, ca. 1979 by Kathleen Brooker and Susan Dewitt: "This house was home to the Mann family, major market gardeners in turn of the century Albuquerque. Their large garden plot was located a few blocks north and west. The primary significance of this house is architectural: easily the earliest building in this north part of the Pera Addition."

Gertrude and Erica

Gertrude Zackary, (1938-2013) was born and raised in Stuttgart, Germany, then moved to Albuquerque in her early 20s. With no background in jewelry design and manufacturing, she developed a new style that incorporated contemporary designs using gemstones with traditional stones. She opened her first jewelry store on 2nd Street in 1976. The company under the direction of Zackary's daughter, Erica Hatchell continues to produce and market new designs with 38 full-time employees in two retail stores.
